

RESPECT

GUIDELINES

Fostering Inclusion

What?

Positive social and emotional development is important. This development influences a child's self-confidence, empathy, the ability to develop meaningful and lasting friendships and partnerships, and a sense of importance and value to those around him/he

Helping children to identify and label emotions is an important first step

Why?

Children who understand and express emotions more easily have better empathetic and social skills, which can help to build relationships.

They even do better academically. Even before children enter school, they are taught which emotions are appropriate to express and how they should express them.

Interpersonal skills are also important for children and success in school involves both social-emotional and cognitive skills, because social interactions, attention, and self-control affect readiness for learning.

How?

Use the storyboard to teach.

Have games and activities.

Create scenarios to teach various emotions.

Teaching Instructions:

1. Love your child and show your affection for them.
2. Hug, cuddle, read, and talk with them throughout the day.
3. Encourage your child to try new things.
4. Help them see what they are capable of.
5. Use words to describe basic feelings like sad, happy, angry and excited.
6. Feel sorry and understand, apologise when done something wrong – although you'll probably need to keep reminding.

How you greet your parents?
Do you say Good morning or Namaste
when you see them?

Do you give your seat to someone who has difficulty in standing?

Yes? Very good.

That is how we show respect
to our parents or neighbors.

Shall we watch this video and learn more about what respecting others mean?

Wow! Did you find it useful!

Awesome!

Let us do a fun activity to jog your memory about the story you just heard.

For each of the given situations below, decide if you are showing respect or disrespect.
Shall we start?

You are in a library reading a really funny book. You laugh out loud and yell to your friend that she has to come see what you're reading.

Not respectful at all!
You are not considering the needs of other people who are trying to read and the need for quiet time.

A new girl comes to the school and she dresses differently than you. You don't like her outfit, but you keep your opinions to yourself.

It is respectful to keep your opinions especially of the way others dress.

You know sharing your opinion will hurt someone's feelings? Always think before you speak.

Your friend loses the game. You yell that he's such an idiot for losing the game.

It is not respectful when you call someone names. Losing and winning are part of a game,

You can tell someone you are upset without being unkind or disrespectful.

Your grandparents have come to visit you. You ignore and continue playing without greeting them.

It is not respectful to ignore your visitors whoever they are.

You can greet them and then excuse yourself.

In a crowded place you are sitting comfortably and find an elder person standing. You offer your place and make them feel better.

It is very respectful to give place to anyone who needs it.

Elderly people cannot stand for a long time. You can offer your seat and make them feel better.

Well done! You are amazing.

Let us see if you can point out what is right and what is not right.

In the following images can you find out which is respectful behavior?

Hope you enjoyed the activity.

Respectful behavior is always appreciated.

Take care and take care of others by respecting them :).

Happy Learning !!!
